FINE AND JAIL

Sentence Imposed on Attorneys By Judge Stout.

Three of the leading lawyers who practice at the Frankfort bar, Luther C. Willis and John Todd, of Shelbyville, and L. F. Johnson, former Representative of Franklin county, narrowly escaped spending a night in the Franklin county jail. They were fined $30 and sentenced to jail for thirty hours for contempt of court by Judge R. L. Stout, but in the afternoon, after other attorneys had intervened in their behalf, they withdrew the objectionable features of an affidavit which had aroused the ire of the court and were relieved of the jail sentences.

Judge Stout's wrath was aroused by the filing of a motion that he vacate the bench in the trial of the case of Mrs. Newton Hazlett against Riley Harrod and others. The motion to swear Judge Stout off the bench was accompanied by affidavits of the defendants that they believed Judge Stout could not give them a fair and impartial trial because he had been heard to say things indicating that he favored the tobacco organization. It was charged that he had said he could not afford to decide anything against the tobacco societies or their members.

The case arose out of the killing of Hazlett by Harrod during the night rider raiding in Shelby county a year ago. Harrod was pardoned before trial, but the widow of the dead man sued him for damages for the killing of her husband. The case was tried at Shelbyville, resulting in a hung jury.

Although he declared the affidavits false, Judge Stout will vacate the bench.

After reading the responses Judge Stout said: "I want to say that this affidavit does not contain one iota of truth and not a fact to hang allegations upon, but because of one allegation in it I am going to vacate the bench in this case. As to the allegation as to my having stated that I could not afford to decide anything against the Burley Society of Franklin county and that I had expressed an opinion hostile to the interests of the defendants when the case was tried in Shelby county. I will say I never saw any one of the defendants or affiliates in this case."

BECKHAM TOLD TO SIT DOWN.

Gov. Beckham arose and said: "May it please your honor, I don't want to interrupt the court, but—" "You sit down, Gov. Beckham, while I am delivering my opinion on this response," and Gov. Beckham sat down.

Continuing, Judge Stout said: "I am not going to hold these ignorant men who signed the affidavit responsible. They did not prepare the affidavit, but their attorneys did, and I will now enter a fine of $30 and thirty hours in jail against Luther C. Willis, John Todd and L. F. Johnson for contempt of court in filing this affidavit, and unless the fine is paid promptly it will have to be worked out at hard labor in the jail."

GRAND JURY INVESTIGATION.

"Mr. Commonwealth's Attorney, I turn this affidavit over to you and I ask that you have me summoned before the grand jury at your earliest possible convenience, as I want this thing investigated that the court and the officers may be protected from such conduct in the future."

In a sawmill explosion in Christian county Houston Roberts, aged 15, was instantly killed and Charles and Edgar Roberts seriously injured. The mill was wrecked.

THE BOY.

Give Him The Best Advantages That Can Be Afforded.

The problem of "what to do with the boy" is one that nearly every father of a boy must face. Sooner or later the boy must go out into the world to make his own way. What is he to do? Is he to be a lawyer, doctor, merchant, mechanic?

How many parents, asks a writer, have studied their boys to see if they could find special aptitude for a certain line of work to meet only with discouragement?

"If my boy would indicate his preference for some line of work, I could do something for him. But why try to make a lawyer out of him, when he doesn't know himself whether he wants to be a lawyer or a railroad brakeman," the father may say in explaining his embarrassment. Yet youthful preference is of little value.

Rare, indeed, must be the man that can not look to his boyhood days and find that at various times he had ambition to be a circus rider, a railroad engineer, a champion prize fighter, a criminal lawyer, a pirate, an Indian fighter and Jessie James!

The unreliability of the preference of youth as a guide to the future is shown by C. W. Bardeen in an article in The School Bulletin, based on his own experience as a school teacher. He says:

"Eleven years ago, in a Massachusetts town where I was Superintendent of Schools, I sent a questionnaire to 466 children between 12 and 16 years. One of the questions was, 'What vocation do you expect to follow?' The purpose of the questionnaire was to get material for talk to the young people of that community. Less than a year ago I found that questionnaire among my 'deadwood.' I rescued it and succeeded in getting authentic information respecting the vocations of 406 of the original 466. Of the 406 five were following the vocations they had selected eleven years ago. I presume that throughout this country not over one per cent. of children in the elementary grades will follow the vocations they might choose today."

However, there really is no occasion for the father of the boy to take too much at heart his boy's future. Give the boy the best advantages that can be afforded—not necessarily expensive advantages—in the way of elevating environment of books and associates. Water reaches its level and in the end the most of us reach about the level for which we are fitted. Genius can not be suppressed.

There Are Others.

If you lose the risk you are after, there are others; if you are duped by liars rare, don't succumb to feel despair, and your undergarments tear—there are others. If your friends desert and mock you—there are others. If your girl should flirt and shock you—there are others. You are not this way who's been treated just only jag; you can always gaily say, there are others.

A Timely Touch.

Patron—You get a good many tips, don't you?
Waiter—Oh, yes; most everybody gives me something.
Patron—Then, perhaps, you could loan me five?

WIDE OPEN EYES.

You Had Better Get a Pair as They Will Help You Through Life.

Wide open eyes are a paying investment.

Better get a pair.

The person who takes in and understands all that he looks at is going to get a heap more out of life than the person who lets almost everything "go in one eye and out the other."

Know your own business first, of course, but if you are any good at all you ought to have enough energy left over to take some interest in what the other fellow is doing and how he does it.

Some people can see a thing done forty times and not have any idea how it's done.

Other people can see the same thing done once and know exactly how it's done and be able to do it themselves.

Of course that's due partly to an inborn ability that New Englanders call "knack."

But also partly to a cultivated habit of observation and wide-awakeness.

This is what happened in a big newspaper office. The telephone girl who presided at the office switchboard was taken suddenly ill. The switchboard was a prominent part of the office. Some dozens of reporters, and a half dozen office boys had daily hung over her desk and watched and listened as she pressed the magic keys and answered the call of the little red and white lights.

Of all these only one office boy had learned, from watching her, to operate that switchboard.

He had no more opportunity to see how the thing was done than the rest, but he had improved his opportunity.

He was at once installed and succeeded so well that when the telephone girl decided not to come back he was permanently promoted.

Sounds like Horatio Alger, doesn't it?

But it isn't. It's real life.

I found one of my girl friends the other day deftly fashioning a marvelous bow for her hat, as if to the manner born.

"Gracious!" I said, "I didn't know you ever studied millinery." "I didn't," she answered, "I just watched the girls when I had a bow made up at the store."

She had "watched," you see, what I had merely looked at.—Ruth Cameron.

Admitted Killing Uncle.

In the Fayette County Jail Jim King, the negro desperado from Beattyville, admitted that he killed his uncle, Charles Scribner, but he declared that he had done it in self-defense and not from ambush, as has been charged against him by the people of Lee county.

Will Have Money For Teachers.

It has been announced by Capt. Ed Farley, State Treasurer, that the money for the county school teachers of the State, due the first week in October, will be paid. Capt. Farley said he had been making a special effort to get money enough to meet the claims when they fall due and is now able to state that the teachers will not have to wait for the pay. Half a million dollars will be due to the teachers of the country schools in October.

THOUSANDS

Hear Vigorous Appeal For Burley Pool.

Distinguished Men Address Great Meeting in Winchester.

On Tuesday, September 21, over 5,000 planters, their families and citizens were the guests of the Winchester Commercial Club at a barbecue. In point of attendance, and the message which eloquent speakers brought the occasion was notable.

By proclamation of the Mayor all business was suspended. During the early forenoon Saxton's band rendered a concert program on the public square; streets were lined with vehicles, and sidewalks were moving columns. As noon approached, the scene of animation was transferred to the fair grounds, where the crowd swirled and eddied, and finally transformed the amphitheatre into a moving field of eager faces.

Following a welcome and an address by Hon. Claude M. Thomas, the assemblage, swelled by a continuous stream from streets, swept over the field and banked tables built in a hollow square. A young herd of cattle, a flock of sheep, burgooed and barbecued, together with enough loaves to pave a block, punctuated the eloquence and enthusiasm that was the real feast of the occasion.

Then the band played some stirring things, and Justice Edward C. O'Rear, Rev. J. M. Rash, Hon. W. P. Kimball, Miss Lloyd, Congressman J. A. Hughes, of West Virginia, and President Clarence LeBus made addresses.

KIMBALL'S MASTERFUL APPEAL.

When Mr. Kimball had concluded a masterful appeal, Director Saxton led a martial chorus that seemed to speak the pride of fellowtownsmen; when Miss Lloyd had finished, amid cheers, the band struck up "America," and the cheering was redoubled.

There had been rounds of cheers and hats were lifted when Miss Lloyd had been escorted to the stand, and another demonstration when Mr. LeBus appeared. He was acclaimed as might be, a hero, and things that the speakers said of his integrity and leadership could reasonably make any man's heart as glad as he declared it to be when he expressed his gratitude.

Mr. LeBus gave a glimpse at the situation when he said that if Clark county gave the support she did last year, the pool was on.

On behalf of the Winchester Commercial Club, Judge J. M. Benton extended a cordial welcome. He said that the occasion was promoted and paid for by the club as an evidence of its interest in an institution that had done so much for the advancement of the tobacco grower. He introduced Hon. Claude M. Thomas, of Paris, as the next Senator from Bourbon county.

Mr. Thomas spoke of the momentous question of what the farmers of Kentucky were going to do with their 1909 crop of tobacco; a question which he said was of vastly greater importance than the issue in any Presidential election.

JUDGE O'REAR SOUNDS WARNING.

Judge Edward C. O'Rear, of the Kentucky Court of Appeals, was introduced by Mr. N. B. Cockrell, who last year was an opponent of the pool and this year is one of its most enthusiastic supporters. The jurist was greeted heartily by the great concourse that had partaken of burgoo and barbecued meats around a table big enough for a fair track.

In beginning he discussed the importance of the issue to be decided within the next few days, saying that the fortunes of Kentucky were in danger and a strong rally to the pool the only means of escape. The first danger he said, came not from the Trust and not from the man who staid out of the pool last year and was its avowed enemy, but in the fact that those who had won a great victory might fail to show the steadfastness and stamina and courage to maintain their dearly bought liberty.

He said that the pool was in every sense legal; it is necessary; it is just; it means the progress of the whole State; better educational facilities; uplifted social conditions; better churches; more comforts; better roads; increased comforts and happier homes.

Judge O'Rear emphasized the fact that Kentucky has a real monopoly on a product which the world demands, tobacco representing more millions than any crop produced in the State. The first victory has been won and the trust is the growers to command in a continued organization. He deplored the fact that at this late day in the campaign the question could be raised whether or not they would act for their own good.

APPEAL FROM A PREACHER.

Rev. James M. Rash, a minister of the Christian Church, made a brief address in which he earnestly pleaded for the success of the pool in the name of the mothers and the children of Kentucky. He is the second preacher to take an active part in the campaign. Mr. Rash introduced the Hon. W. P. Kimball, of Lexington.

JUDGE BENTON INTRODUCES LEBUS.

Judge Benton introduced the leader of the pooling movement as "the climax of what has held you here." In the course of a speech, brief, but stirring, he said that the company which was to handle this tobacco crop was the first that had taken the poor man in as a full and equal partner, sharing alike with every member of the society. He would save millions that he had been paying out to banks, warehouse companies and insurance companies.

Points Gets Nomination.

Allen H. Points, cashier of the Salt Lick Deposit Bank, was nominated at Morehead as the Democratic candidate for the Legislature from the Bath-Rowan district.

Mr. Points is a native of Owen county, but has been a resident of Salt Lick for about five years. He is believed to be a popular candidate. The district is very close between the Democratic and Republican parties.

Concerning The Editor.

An editor is a male being whose buzziness it is to ravinate a newspaper. He writes editorials, grinds out poetry, inserts dates and weddings, and sorts out manuscripts, keeps a waste basket, blows the devil, steals matter, flits other people's battles and sells his paper for a dollar a year, takes white beans and apple sass for pay when he can get it, raises a large family and works 19 hours out of every 24, knows no Sunday, gets damned by everybody and once in a while whipped by somebody, lives poor, dies middle-aged and often broken-hearted, leaves no money, is rewarded for a life of toil with a very short free obituary puff in the newspapers.

POLICEMEN.

It is not possible for policemen and officers of a town or county or a state or even in the United States always to detect the perpetrators of crime or the fellows that throw rocks. After many years of opportunity officers have not discovered the man "who hit Billy Patterson." Why should the Gazette, which goes to press on Wednesday afternoon, say: "Officers who disregard their (good colored citizens) rights should be fired and men secured who will do their duty" in speaking of an alleged rock throwing on Tuesday night, in which a colored woman was hit. Officers promptly responded to the call, searched a house where the hurlers of rock were supposed to be, roused from sleep two men who declared they knew nothing of the incident.

Policemen have an unsavory job. We appreciate their efforts to preserve the peace and will give them all assistance we can when they are in the right. We are at liberty to say, and do say, what we think ought to be said, if they are direct. Throwing rocks may not be so popular after this week.

If some unfortunate is "touched" in Rat Alley, if some fellow lacking in discretion gets too much booze; if some silly tries to take the town with firearms and cuss words, the policemen are expected to solve the mystery. That is proper. They go up against the most dissolute and dangerous. They themselves should be cautious, discreet and sober. They have not the entire responsibility for failure to suppress all evil. The public has a duty to perform.

THE POOL.

We have had no experience in raising or dealing in tobacco. We have, of course, read much about the pooling of tobacco, the difficulties encountered, the advantages to be derived, the agreement among men for mutual protection of interests, and many other questions directly and remotely connected with the tobacco industry.

We have never doubted the right and wisdom of men engaged in any particular business to confer with each other relative to their business and to combine or pool their business in a lawful, peaceable, honorable and dignified way, at the same time granting to all others the equal right to dispose of their interests as they may wish.

While we do not profess to understand the entire situation, we are of the opinion that the financial prosperity of the White Barley tobacco growers will be increased if they voluntarily agree to pool their crops, and that the success of the pool this year will guarantee for the future a ready sale of their tobacco at prices which will yield a reasonable compensation for their time, labor and skill.

No doubt mistakes have been made in striving to perfect this great organization of tobacco growers. Men are to learn by experience—an experience which often brings great anxiety, sacrifice, suffering and financial loss. The hope of better conditions stimulates men to plan, endure, persevere.

We are told by men who have given much time and thought to this proposition that if 75 per cent of the 1909 crop is pledged the pool will be a success.

We hope it will be a success.

WE COMMEND THE JUDGE.

We heard Judge Young's instructions to the grand jury on reported sale of intoxicants in Jeffersonville precinct. We wish to certify our approval of his expressed determination that the law must be respected—not simply because whiskey is the article sold, or because whiskey, if drunk, produces drunkenness and crime, but because the selling of whiskey in that territory is against the law, sets at defiance the authority of the State. Read the article: "Circuit Court, Emphatic Words to Grand Jury."

We have privately advised, and now publicly advise, the law-abiding citizens of that precinct, who know that whiskey is being sold, to come before the grand jury and tell what you know and use your influence to stop the traffic. If you are opposed to the illegal and demoralizing business, go after them like you mean business, and do not let threats or acts of violence, killing of stock or burning of property or anything deter you. Stop it. The Judge has offered you every assistance possible. The grand jury cannot guess at things. They must have testimony, reliable and truthful, backed up by a courage that leads to loss of property, or life if necessary.

People, who know and can assist the court, but refuse to act, do not deserve much sympathy. If the residents of that section or any other precinct deliberately take no interest in suppressing lawlessness, they have no excuse for lamenting the fact that life and property are unsafe and that immorality, drunkenness and rebbery prevail.

SEWER SYSTEM.

The voters of our city will remember that at the November election we are to vote on a proposition to issue $50,000 bonds for a system of sewers. There can be no doubt about the benefits attending the construction and maintenance of adequate sewerage.

We are informed by a city official that there are many complaints about the offensiveness of defective sewers; something must be done. Indications are that unless these defects are remedied by the construction of adequate sewers, an order will be issued to many property owners of our city to disconnect the sewer pipes of their residences and business houses from the present dilapidated and insufficient public sewers, and will also prevent the use of the city's surface drainage for such purposes. Such an order will necessitate the digging of many cesspools in various parts of the town, at a heavy expense to property owners.

Now is the time to reset your flowers. We have pots of all sizes, from 5c up. The Fair.

Candidate For County Judge Shot by His Brother.

Julius Caesar Hurst, Republican candidate for County Judge of Breathitt was shot and probably fatally wounded by his brother, Hannibal Hurst, at his home at Wainwright Sunday evening.

The shooting is said to be accidental, as Hannibal did not know the old thing was loaded.

A handcar was rushed to Jackson and Dr. A. M. Arnold, uncle of the Hursts, went to the side of the wounded man. The bullet entered the Judge's body over the left hip bone.

Circuit Court.

The adjourned session of court met on Monday. Judge Young was brief in his instructions to the grand jury. He said that there was a report that whiskey was being sold at or near Jeffersonville. He urged the jury to THOROUGHLY investigate and to report to him. If whiskey is sold they must inform him in writing, if not sold, they must likewise inform him. He pledged all the authority of the court and county to have any or all the citizens of Jeffersonville community summoned and brought to court if need be, to testify. They must know. Such sale is illegal and must be stopped. See editorial.

James W. Groves is foreman. After being ready for service for a day and a half the petit jury was discharged on Tuesday at noon, without having tried a single case. The grand jury is continued. Some equity cases may receive attention, but indications are as we go to press that the session will close on Tuesday (yesterday). We do not know the number or importance of the cases on docket, but the fact that a term of our Circuit Court can be concluded in 2, or 3 days is a compliment to our community.

Bryan's Daughter for Representative.

Mrs. Dewey C. Bailey, wife of United States Marshal of Colorado and President of the Denver Woman's Club, was endorsed by the State Woman's Republican Club for the nomination for Congress in the First district. This move came as a surprise to the politicians, particularly to the Democrats, who had been figuring on practically a clear field with either Mrs. Sarah Platte Decker, President of the National Federation of Women's Clubs, or Mrs. Ruth Bryan Leavitt, daughter of W. J. Bryan, as their nominee.

Mrs. Decker is a receptive candidate for the nomination either for Congress, or two years hence, for Mayor of Denver.

Mrs. Leavitt was also understood to be a candidate for the nomination, and probably would not be opposed by Mrs. Decker.

Young, and Professor Kentucky Wesleyan College, W. S. Anderson.

Rev. C. F.ONEY, who has accepted served Grassy Lick and Camargo congregations in our county, has been transferred to Oldville, Harrison county. He is succeeded by Rev. W. F. Wyatt.

Rev. B. C. Horton, who takes Rev. J. L. Weber's place, has been transferred from Chattanooga, Tenn., where he last year served the church. He has a wife and three children and is very favorably recommended.

We regret to lose Revs. Weber and Oney from our county, but welcome their successors.

Surprise and regret came to many of our citizens when on Sunday the report reached here that Rev. J. L. Weber, pastor of the Methodist Church, had been transferred to the Tennessee Conference and would take charge of the First Methodist Church of Jackson. For over two years he has been in our midst. So far as we have heard he has been very popular with and acceptable to all the people, both in his own and other congregations. He is a man of recognized ability as a scholar, speaker, teacher, and takes an active interest in matters of public welfare. Mrs. Weber is equally prominent in affairs among the women of the congregation and the town. Personally we wish he had remained here. Our best wishes attend him and family. We are pleased to announce that he will preach here next Sunday morning, before departing for the Southland.

We notice that among Presiding Elders, J. L. Clark goes to Covington district; D. W. Robertson to Danville; E. L. Southgate to Lexington; W. E. Arnold to Maysville; John R. Deering to Shelbyville.

Three conferences have been held in Paris: In 1868, 1879 and 1909. Rev. T. B. Cook, of Jackson, attended all three.

Kentucky W. C. T. U. Convention.

Next Friday marks the beginning of the 27th annual State Convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union in Lexington. The convention will continue to and include Tuesday, October 5. State-wide Prohibition has been the keynote of the W. C. T. U. campaign of the past year. All sessions will be held at Central Christian church.

Several of the most noted prohibition workers of the State and country will be heard.

ANOTHER PRESIDENT

Preaches in Tabernacle—President Makes An Appeal For Amity.

In the pulpit of the famous Mormon Tabernacle in Salt Lake City, Utah, where four years ago Theodore Roosevelt, then President, preached a long sermon on right living and the duties of good citizenship, President Taft on Sunday faced an audience which he said inspired him to follow in the footsteps of his predecessor.

Mr. Taft did preach a sermon. The immense audience in the flag-draped edifice, the enthusiastic cheering, inspired him, the President declared, with higher thoughts of country and patriotism.

The President's sermon was an appeal for amity between the people for attributing the best, rather than the worst, motives to the action of others when possible to do so and not to harbor hatred or animosity.

THE PRESIDENT'S TEXT.

"A soft answer turneth away wrath, but grievous words stir up anger," was the text, from Proverbs. The sermon was a homely utterance, largely made up of a relation of stories to give emphasis to the points.

From the tabernacle the President was driven to review about twenty thousand school children. At the Young Men's Christian Association he made a brief address to an audience of men.

TRIBUTE TO ROOSEVELT.

"My distinguished predecessor under the inspiration of an audience like this delivered an address in the nature of a sermon upward of two hours in length. He knew how to appeal to the best that is in a man and a woman and arouse them to lift themselves to higher standards and higher ideals.

"But it has not been given to me to exercise that great influence which was his. And yet, I have felt that on this Sunday morning it was necessary for me to make such effort as I could. I give you the words from Proverbs: 'A soft answer turneth away wrath, but grievous words stir up anger.'"

October Trots.

When the gates of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association are thrown open on Tuesday, Oct. 5 at Lexington, one of the greatest light harness meets in the history of the country will be in progress.

The list contains 700 entries, or more than the combined entry list of any three tracks in the United States this year.

The horses entered are of a much better class than usual and present indications point to some of the most gruelling contests ever seen on the big ovals.

200 Dead.

On Saturday at Dunbar Station, La., the bodies of 36 sailors and fishermen were found. Killed by a hurricane on Monday before. The total dead is about 200.

BILLIARD PLAYING WON BRIDE

Unusual Stakes in Games Decided in Italian Club, in City of Philadelphia.

Men have often played billiards, but not for love. It has taken William Caruso, a prosperous young barber of the Colonnade hotel, to demonstrate the fact that Cupid lurks in the corners of the green table, with a smile and an arrow for the victor of the game of chance.

Four years ago Caruso met, in the Mazzini Garibaldi club, John Cirino, the best billiard player in the club. Caruso, undaunted by the other's reputation, challenged him to a billiard duel, with the privilege, if he won, of asking in marriage the hand of a certain Miss Beauty, Flionena Cirino, the then champion's sister. All was arranged, the match came off, Caruso won, and Cirino introduced the victor to his sister.

Every week the billiard matches would be the talk of the club when it became known what were the stakes. And every week Caruso beat his opponent, fortified by the thought of the smiles that awaited him after the battle.

Convinced at last that the young barber was a worthy man in every respect, Cirino gave his consent to the nuptials.—Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

TWO IDEAS ABOUT BUSINESS

One With It and the Difference Therein.

It must be remembered always that it is not the price of an article which is important, but the reason for the price.

The bankrupt stock, the fire sale, the manufacturer's remnants, the annual clearance, the removal sale, the dissolution-of-partnership sale—what are these, and many more, but arguments for the price? And note this one point—that without the argument the price is powerless. Reduce your furnished overcoats from $100 to $50, and liberal discount attracts little attention. Why? Because there is no reasonable explanation for the reduction. Why should you present overcoats to the public? But announce that, owing to an expiration of your lease, and the imperative circumstance that you vacate your present store within two weeks, you will reduce the price of your furnished overcoats from $100 to $50, and you may sell easily all you have to offer. Instinctively, the public sees the whole picture—the proprietor's anxiety, the inevitable removal, the lessening days, the final sacrifice, and the store full of eager buyers, and to seize such an opportunity. This is only half the reduction previously considered; but one is business without imagination, and the other is business with it.—Atlantic Monthly.

Borglum's Group of North America.

Gutzon Borglum's group of North America, for the bureau of the American republics at Washington, has been cast in plaster, and is prominent as a grand artistic monument. The figure of the youth representing "Progress" is particularly strong, and we imagine there is a certain hidden meaning in the expression of the nervous figure that will give rise to some discussion when the group is placed. Mr. Borglum, who started for vacation in the Gunnison country of Colorado, will return in August and the marble group will be cut in the rough at Washington. Then it will be placed in position at the building of the American republics, and the sculptor will finish it in situ. There will be no leaving of work to mechanics. The group will represent the full expression of a man full of original ideas, who takes his art intensely seriously.

Try the Hunger Cure.

A German woman who has suffered for years with neuralgia and headache because she has been cured by fasting. "Food is the root of all evil," she declares, "not money. Eating and unhappiness are closely interwoven." Hunger cures for certain classes of nervous and internal disorders are already being regarded favorably by some medical authorities. Dreams, says one expert, are the result of a condition of the stomach, and thousands of people are plagued with disagreeable dreams, which exhaust and destroy nerve centers. Fasting seems a rational cure for such disorders, and there is reason to suppose that it will in future form a more material part of the treatment of patients by nerve specialists.

Corn Growing in Treetops.

Occasionally one of the seven wonders of the world. It is a stalk of corn said to be about fifty feet high, growing in the top of a tree. This is not made up, and we can cite you to the person who told us. It is supposed the seed of this corn was carried up in the tree by some bird, and that it took root and grew. The tree is about forty-five feet high and the stalk of the corn is about four or five feet high. The tree is on a place near Seneca—Farm and Factory.

An Unhappy Recollection.

Mrs. Kragg—I see they have just celebrated the centenary of Mendelssohn. Mr. Kragg—I've always felt a prejudice against that fellow. Mrs. Kragg—Why? Mr. Kragg—Every time I hear his confounded wedding march I think of our wedding!

THE JUDGE AND THE DOCTOR

Man of Medicine, After Jurist's Explanation, Concluded to Let His Grievance Pass.

The physician was a witness in a damage case, and his answers to questions had been marked by more length than lucidity. The lawyer who was examining him, several times cautioned him to confine his replies to subjects involved in the questions, but this warning had little effect. Finally the judge lost patience and told him to make an effort to shorten his answers and to quit talking when he got through.

This had some effect temporarily, but a few minutes later the physician began a long and rambling answer which had only a vague and remote bearing upon what had been asked him.

"Look here," said the now irate judge, "you are wasting the time of the court, the attorneys, the witnesses and everybody else here, and delaying the trial of the case. Now, if you don't confine yourself to the subjects in issue, after I shall send you to jail for contempt of court!"

That had its effect, and the testimony of the witness was concluded in a reasonable time after that.

The next day the judge and the physician met upon the street. They were acquaintances, and stopped and shook hands.

"Say, Judge," inquired the doctor, "would it be contempt of court, now that you are no longer on the bench to say that you acted like a damned fool at the trial yesterday, and would you send me to jail?"

"Oh, no," replied his honor, easily, "I'd go to jail; you'd go to the hospital."

The physician didn't say what he had intended to say.

CLEVER WORK OF DETECTIVES

Parisian Peace Guardians Employ Effective Disguise in Effort to Make Arrest.

Two ragged-looking street singers appeared in front of a cafe in one of the popular quarters of Paris. One of them sang a pathetic street ballad, and the other accompanied him on the guitar. Copsers fell here and there from the windows and some motorists listened with pleasure to the music. Suddenly the singer broke off his song, the accompanist dropped his guitar and both seized by the collar a man who was coming out of the cafe, snatched an envelope with 750 francs and a lot of silver of paper out of his hand, and told him that he was their prisoner. The two musicians were simply two clever detectives sent by M. Hachet to secure the arrest of a clandestine bookmaker, who was taking bets on the races, an occupation forbidden by the law. The bookmaker struggled hard to get loose from their grip, and he, in turn, threatened to have the men arrested as highway robbers. The amusing thing is that a policeman who had observed the scene rushed to his assistance, and although the detectives showed their papers, he had his doubts and marched them off to the police station, together with their prisoner. Here things were at last cleared up, and the detectives were complimented for their clever stratagem.

Von Buelow as a Toy.

Among the thousands of ingenious toys with which the German market is flooded at Christmas time there is one hardly annual, the Stehaufrannchen, or tumbler, a little figure with jointed base, which, stand it how you will, invariably regains its original position. A year or so ago a toy merchant, who must have possessed a keen political sense, conceived the genial idea of imparting to the little tumbler the lineaments of Prince Buelow. The toy sold by the hundred thousand and the inventor must have made his fortune. Public opinion immediately caught the subtle allusion to the chancellor's astounding success in tolerating so serenely one of the tightest corners, and the sobriquet of Stehaufrannchen stuck.

Favors Fads in School.

A woman teacher says that there is more time for the so-called "fads" in the schools than there used to be, and they make for culture and higher ideals in the education of the child. The everlasting drill in arithmetic that used to be necessary to make boys good accountants is no longer required, adding machines doing all such laborious work for the merchant. The time, for drilling is now given over to training in language, in debating and manual work, it has been found, make boys neater and more careful in their work. The study of color in the public schools, although it may have not developed a single painter, has nevertheless improved the public taste in dress, in furnishings and in civic adornment.

Shuffleboard at the Resort.

Gunner—Isn't it monotonous at these summer hotels? Guyer—Not at all. You should see our exciting games of shuffleboard. Gunner—Shuffleboard? Why, they play that on ships. Guyer—I know, and they play it at our summer hotel. If you don't shuffle pretty lively you don't get any board at all.

Hogs a Gold Mine for Farmers This Year.

It should be a time of jubilation for swine-producing farmers. The last week's sales of hogs show another $8.60 top, and a very large percentage of the good hogs selling at the Chicago market at $8.20 to $8.45. These prices are the highest in general average paid since war times. In 1892 packers paid as high as $8.30 for a few fancy fat-backs.

A liberal movement of Western range cattle, swelling the total cattle supply at Chicago last week to 68,000 against 65,137 the preceding week and only 50,516 head one year ago, has been sufficient to cause some recession in values for the lower and medium classes of native cattle. For native steers ranging in value from $7.25 down there has been a further break of 15 to 25c, bringing the range as compared with two weeks ago down 35 to 50c from values at that time.

SHEEP.

A tidal wave in the run of sheep toward market, the total for last week rising to about 139,900 head against 118,878 the previous week and 124,393 the same week last year, burdened the market enough to cause a break of 15 to 25c in prices for sheep and 40 to 50c in lamb values as compared with a week ago. As compared with one year ago, however, prices for both sheep and lambs should be considered on a very satisfactory basis. At that time the best wethers were selling at $4.50 and the bulk of sheep at $3.50 to $4.00.

Lambs came in heavy enough supply to give packers' buyers a big advantage in trade the last week and they haggled off a cut of 40 to 50c from the range of prices paid the previous week. Under lighter run Thursday shippers paid up to $7.10 to $7.25 for a few fancy lambs, but $7.25 was the limit with the packers and the bulk of lambs for slaughter sold at $6.50 to $7.

Dr. Cook to See Peary.

Dr. Frederick A. Cook, discoverer of the North Pole, is preparing to bring suit against Commander R. E. Peary for slander and the misappropriation of Dr. Cook's stores at Etah. This action is being arranged in view of the reports that Peary has placed his case against Dr. Cook in the hands of a lawyer. Because of the attitude of the two explorers it appears that the Courts, and not the scientific societies, may decide who discovered the pole.

A Zero Courtship.

The Practical Young Man and the Girl from Boston had known each other for nearly two weeks, and two weeks is a long time when there are moonlight nights and a stretch of sheltered beach with an old wrecked schooner smuggling down comfortably in its sandy grave. It seemed as though they had known each other for years and years. The Practical Young Man said so, and the Girl from Boston, knowing him, agreed with him. One night when a fleecy cloud passed accommodatingly across the moon, and the sheltered beach seemed even more sheltered than usual, and the old wreck was actually redolent of romance instead of tar, on that night the Practical Young Man so far forgot himself as to ask the Girl from Boston if he might kiss her.

The Girl from Boston shivered. "Oh, sir!" she cried, "I have never been kissed in all my life." "That's all right," said the Practical Young Man. "Don't let that worry you. I suppose someone has got to break the ice."—New York Times.

The Difference.

The editor and his wife disagree with each other very materially. She sets things to right and he writes things to set. She reads what others write and he writes what others read. She keeps the devil out of the house as much as possible and he retains him and could not go to press without him. He knows more than he writes and she writes more than she knows.

Murdered By Robbers.

An entire family of six persons was murdered and the bodies of all but one of the victims was burned with their home at Hurley, Va. The motive evidently was robbery, as the owner of the house, an aged woman known as "Aunt Betty" Justice, was generally supposed to keep a large sum of money about the place.

Attempt to Rob Freight Depot.

An unsuccessful attempt was made early Tuesday morning of last week by burglars to blow open the safe at the Southern freight depot in Lexington, and though the lock was torn off the safe door, it successfully resisted the attacks, and two men who are believed to be the burglars were arrested.

Patrolmen heard an explosion and went to the depot to investigate. As they approached the building two men came running down the steps from the office, and one halted when hailed by the officers. The other took to his heels and escaped. A few hours later a man was arrested in Irish-town. He denies that he was at the depot, and says his name is James Gleason, and that his home is in Louisville. The other man gave his name as Arthur Lon, and the police say he confessed when a bottle of nitro-glycerin, a "jimmy," caps and fuses were found on him.

Able Attorney Sinks to Rest.

Joseph T. O'Neal, aged 61 years, who was one of the best-known attorneys of Louisville and Kentucky, a prominent lodge man and a life-long Democrat, succumbed September 22, to organic disorders after an illness of five weeks. The end was not unexpected. Hope for his recovery was abandoned several weeks ago by physicians.

"I suffered habitually from constipation. Doan's Regulents relieved and strengthened the bowels, so that they have been regular ever since."—A. E. Davis, Grocer, Sulphur Springs, Tex. 8-5.

Fined For Fast Running.

Edgar Perkins, a chauffeur for the Bayless Motor Car Co., of Lexington, was fined $25 in police court at Danville for running at a high rate through Main street. Four State College youths were with Perkins in the auto. Nicholasville wants them on the same charge.

First Sale of New Crop.

The first sale of the new crop of Burley leaf tobacco in the Cincinnati market took place Wednesday at the Planters' Leaf Tobacco Warehouse.

Two hogsheds of Carroll county growth and packing were offered, and, as the goods were of exceptionally fine quality for a first "offering," there was sharp competition and much interest among manufacturers in the sale. One hogshed was of choice red leaf, and was purchased by T. S. Hamilton & Co. at $13.75 per 100 pounds. The other package was of colory lugs of fine quality and texture, and was knocked down to J. B. Heizer & Co. at $14.75 per 100 pounds.

Two things were noted and commented upon in connection with this sale. First, that the "cure" or condition was perfect for a first offering sale, being as dry and free of moisture as winter order goods, and, second, that the tobacco was the earliest offering seen in this market for many years.

The new crop will begin to come on the market in appreciable quantities the latter part of October, and by the middle of November the great leaf tobacco warehouses will again be in full swing.

Prepared For Long Voyage.

Otto and John Smith, aged respectively 10 and 12 years, of New Albany, had been reading a great deal of late about Dr. Cook and Commander Peary, and they stole away from their home last week. They went direct to the Ohio river where they found a skiff belonging to Charles V. Hendrick, mailing clerk in the post-office. Their intention was to make a voyage to the Gulf of Mexico, via New Orleans, and their ultimate destination was the North Pole. They had studied the subject for several days, and had laid in a supply of provisions which they had taken from their parents' pantry. About 1 o'clock in the morning they started on their long voyage, but when they got as far down the river as Paddy's Run, about daylight, they got homesick and started home overland up the Kentucky shore. They said they would never run away from home again, after they were given a good spanking.

No Crime to Hug and Kiss.

In the habeas corpus case of James Fisher before Judge Elliott in the Court of Common Pleas, the point arose as to whether hugging and kissing was a crime. Justice Robert W. Beach, December 9, 1908, to jail for five years and fined $25 and costs on the charge of assaulting a girl in Baltimore by hugging and kissing her.

Thomas J. Mason, who represented Fisher, made a point that hugging and kissing was not a crime nor an attempt to do violence, but generally was an evidence of affection, and as the charge did not show that Fisher's action was against the will of the girl, the prisoner should be discharged. Judge Elliott smiled and ordered the prisoner discharged without comment. Fisher already had served a year of his sentence, counting time off for good behavior.

Langley Is for Re-Election.

John W. Langley, Congressman from the Tenth district, says he is a candidate for re-election and will have no opposition for the nomination at the hands of the Republican party.

Mr. Langley said that he is confident of re-election despite the fact that the Democrats will make a vigorous fight to put him on the shelf. Mr. Langley is by far the most popular Republican member of Congress from Kentucky. His long stay in Washington as a Government employe before being elected to Congress gave him a large acquaintance in the Capitol.

Mr. Langley said that he had been extended an invitation to accompany the Residential party from St. Louis to New Orleans, October 25 to 30 and that he had accepted and would make the trip.

New Departure.

After two months of remarkable sales, W. S. Lloyd, the enterprising druggist, says that his plan of selling at half price the regular 50 cent size of Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia, and guaranteeing to refund the money if it does not cure, has been the greatest success he has ever known.

He has sold hundreds of bottles of the specific, and as yet has not had one returned, although he stands ready at any time to refund the money should any customer be dissatisfied.

Anyone suffering with dyspepsia, constipation, liver troubles, headaches, dizziness, coated tongue or the general tired feeling, caused by inactive liver and bowels or disordered digestion, should take advantage of W. S. Lloyd's new departure and buy a bottle of Dr. Howard's specific at half price, with his personal guarantee to refund the money if it does not cure. 10-6-12.

Charter To Be Altered.

At a called meeting of the Board of trustees of the College of the Bible of Transylvania University at Lexington, an agreement was reached among the various members of the Board, whereby the charter of the college is to be altered. It was agreed to increase the membership of the Board from fifteen to eighteen. Also to increase to $1,000,000 the amount of property which can be held by the college. Under the charter as it stands only $250,000 worth of property can legally be held by the institution. The increasing endowment fund made necessary this alteration in the charter.

Costly Popularity.

France's cruiser Leon Gambetta is named after the famous politician, who died on December 31, 1882. In the times of his intense popularity Gambetta had an experience which he was wont to tell against himself. In Paris admirers unhooked his horses and dragged the carriage to his house. Gambetta would narrate this with an air of pride, and he would add, with a smile: "But I never saw my horses again!"

Scarcity of Humor.

It is to be feared that if the papers reserved a special corner once each week for the witicism of the week, it would be often left blank. There is no wit to speak of to-day, only a feeble imitation of it which people are fond of calling the saving sense of humor.—London Saturday Review.

New Holland Tramway System.
The Dutch government has granted a concession to the Amsterdam & North Holland Tramway Company to build and operate an electric railway system in Holland. The route will be nearly 40 miles, running from Amsterdam through Zaandam & IJmuiden, from Zaandijk to Wijk aan-Zee, and Wormerveer to Farnedend. The Holland Development Company of Amsterdam will build the entire system.

AN OBJECT LESSON ACCEPT BAD MONEY

GIRL'S DESIRE FOR MANIFESTATION FULFILLED.

Simple Incident Proved to Her That Love Was Still the Ruler of the Universe—Her View Broadened.

The girl was not quite happy. She had just been refused a favor which she had asked of somebody who ought to have granted it, and the refusal rankled. Besides, she did not know how that which she desired was to be accomplished. "If love," she thought, "is the principle of the universe, why is it not manifested?"

She made a struggle with self-pity, discouragement, resentment and several other impas that were offering themselves to be bowed down unto as forces of man and as powers able to overthrow good, and went on her way, according to the New York Press. Her errand took her into her Harlem home, when it was completed she turned homeward, when suddenly the heavens opened and a splashing, heavy down-pour of summer rain flooded the streets, almost without warning. The girl had barely time to take hasty refuge in a doorway.

It proved to be the entrance to a wine shop. The girl was a Puritan in every fiber. Wine and sin were synonymous to her of people who purveyed such iniquity she had never known anything. They and their kind were for the other side of the street trouble and sorrow. She was alarmed at finding herself in their vicinity. She glanced around with misgivings. In her open doorway she saw the procreant of a shop—a mild-faced, Harlequin and his wife, smiling kindly on her. "Come in out of the wet," suggested the man, with easy hospitality. She accepted, and stood with the couple, looking out of the open door at the storm.

On the curbstone under a tree that stood in front of the wine shop door, they saw a tiny sparrow. Apparently it had dropped or fluttered down from the tree and it was either injured or too drenched or frightened to fly or to escape from the pelting rain. In its extremity it hopped for the open door, as if to the presence of human creatures.

"Take it up," said the woman softly.

The big wine seller stooped and tenderly lifted the little, dripping creature in his hand.

"It is not hurt," he said. "Only wet and trembling. It is a young bird, not quite able to take care of itself." The woman brought a warm, soft cloth and she cradled the bird in her hand. The man put it carefully on a desk and the woman banished the family cat. The girl watched them care for the bird with the same thoughts surging through her mind. She knew that she had seen him face to face, and she remembered the angel's injunction to imitate the birds. "Not thou any thing which God has made common or unclean."

Then the storm cleared and the girl went on her way. The next day she returned to the wine shop to express her appreciation and to learn what had become of the bird.

"After it got dry and warm, it flew into the window," the woman told her, "and when we saw that it wished to be out we let it go." "Love," said the girl to herself, "is still the ruler of the universe and 'not a sparrow falleth to the ground without my Father's care.'"

Her desire that love might be manifested had been answered—not to the person she had looked for, but to that which looks for his infinite manifestation and sees it in the face of his brother man.

Wellfleet Auk 500 Years Old.
One bird, a spreading oak which experts have decided must have been growing at the time of the discovery of America by Columbus, is a landmark on the estate of the late Arthur Hunnewell in Wellfleet, Mass.

The magnificent tree measures 26 feet in circumference at the base. It is a noticeable landmark on account of its unusual size. It intersects the fence which separates the fertile fields of the Hunnewell estate from the highway, and thus arrests the attention of the passer-by.

The late Mr. Hunnewell took great pride in the ancient tree. It has withstood the ravages of pests for a great many years and is apparently in condition to live for a great many more years. The late Mr. Hunnewell once had the tree examined by an expert from the Smithsonian institute, who declared that it was between 400 and 500 years old.

Elliott, the apostle to the Indians, frequently passed the towering oak while going to and from South Natick, where he preached to the Indians, the tree being beside what was the old trail.

Great Writer's Prayer.
The service of the day is over, and the hour come to rest. We resign into thy hands our sleeping bodies, our cold hearts and open doors, our weary souls with smiles, give us to labor smiling. As the sun returns in the east, so let our patience be renewed with dawn; as the sun lightens the world, so let our loving-kindness make bright this house of our habitations.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

In Bible Times.

"Why did you break your engagement with that girl?"
"When she has a birthday she wants me to kiss her once for each year of her life, and I can't kiss a girl four hundred times in one sitting."

BOGUS COINS CIRCULATE FREELY IN MEXICO.

Only When They Get into the Banks or Government Offices are They Taken Up—Work Done Systematically.

Counterfeiters find Mexico a good field for their business. An enormous amount of spurious coin is in circulation in that country. A remarkable thing about these false coins is that they are readily accepted in the ordinary channels of trade. It is only when they get into the banks or offices of the federal state governments that they are taken up and retired from circulation. The silver peso is the principal coin counterfeited, although the coins of smaller denomination, particularly the five-cent piece, are not below the notice of the illicit metal workers.

There is no man estimating the amount of false coin in circulation, but it must be very large, as is evidenced by the fact that one of every ten coins of the peso denomination in the ordinary transaction of business usually is found to be spurious.

The average Mexican of the lower class is an adept in filleting and general metal work. The counterfeiting outfits, which are crude affairs, and are conducted in the open air, are good specimens of counterfeiting rough method of their manufacture. Few of the counterfeiters take the trouble to make a laborate comparison for their goods. The majority of them are content with ordinary lead. In many instances the coins are cast in the streets and are plated with silver. The silver plated brass coins are kept in circulation until the plating wears off, when they are not infrequently accepted in the usual line of trade.

It is said that counterfeiters in Mexico have little difficulty in placing their product in circulation. In many instances uncovered by the police and secret service men the counterfeiters are caught in the act of passing the coins. The counterfeiters are in the streets with silver. The silver plated brass coins are kept in circulation until the plating wears off, when they are not infrequently accepted in the usual line of trade.

The counterfeiting of bank bills or stamps has not been attempted in Mexico for many years. The execution of work of this kind requires the exercise of a kind of skill that the average Mexican counterfeiter is not possessed of. The nearest approach to this kind of counterfeiting took place not long since when many thousands of dollars worth of fraudulent street car tickets were made and sold in Mexico City. These tickets were made to look like the originals, but it was only a few days after they were put on the market before the fraud was discovered and the perpetrators arrested.

Roosevelt Children's Morning Swim.
An amusing incident occurred recently at the morning swim of the Archie and their sister were in the water, the unconscious instinct of the Anglo-Saxon to outdo, sent them swimming and splashing to a distance beyond the habit of many young Italians who bathe there.

One dark-haired, dark-skinned fellow surveyed them solemnly, then separated himself from his race and followed the foreigners. Every water stunt that he saw many times. When they rested on a distant beach he came near by. If they dived, he dived; not a movement of theirs escaped him. When they swam further did they swim than he. When noon bells sounded they turned and he followed, and he reached the beach first. They solemnly imitated him. When they rested on a distant beach he came near by. Unavoidably Detained.
A well-known general tells the following story:

One day he received a telegram from a subordinate who was injured in a railroad accident while on for-lough, which read: "Will not report today, as expected, on account of unavoidable circumstances."

The tone of the message was not satisfactory to the general and he wired at once to the subordinate: "Report as ordered or give reasons."

Within an hour the following message came back over the wires from the hospital: "The report is on the way; legs off—can't walk. Will not report unless you insist."

SPORT IN HOOKING 'GATORS

Also is a Pastime That Has a Considerable Amount of Danger Mixed With It.

"Hunting alligators at night with a bullseye lantern and shotgun is a game sport compared with what is called a 'gator hunt' in the day," said an old Floridian. "I mean the act of capturing an alligator alive and then towing the fellow to high ground through mud and water from what is called in Florida a 'gator hole.' The 'gator' fishermen first find the hole, which is indicated by an opening in the surrounding grass in the midst of a dense growth of vegetation, where the ground is worn smooth by the alligator in his pulls in and out. Sometimes these 'gator' holes are in the nature of a cave in the bank of a stream and may be 15 or 20 feet deep, and if so it is not an easy matter to get the animal out.

"The fisher is supplied with a long pole with a metal hook in the end. He takes a strong rope and, when it is about the entrance of the hole. At this juncture Roosevelt's monkey hunting in Africa is not in it compared to 'gator hunting in the Florida marsh."

"Then the fisher rams with the hooked pole down the den and waits and listens. If he finds the 'gator' in the hole he teases the beast by picking him until the 'gator' in a rage finally grabs the hooked pole and is pulled from the hole. It is with uncertainty that he is dragged forth, for it is not known whether the catch is a large or small animal, and the fisher does not know whether to get into shape to run or to fight. But out the 'gator' comes, bellowing and roaring mad."

"After the 'gator' is dragged to the surface he in his rage turns and rolls and finally twists himself up in the rope or nose that has been previously prepared. With the assistance of the others in the party the 'gator's' legs and mouth are tied and the 'gator' is a prisoner."

"The 'gator' is for the most part caught in marshes where the ground is soft and slushy and too wet for horse or wagon to enter. The fishers are compelled to wade to the catch to higher ground, there to be loaded into the waiting wagon, and the hunt is ended."

A Crowded Steamer.

A friend was complaining the other day to Capt. Barber, port captain of the state pilots, about the crowded condition of the steamer on which he recently made a trip.

"Four in a room?" replied Barber. "That's nothing."

"You should have traveled in the days of the gold rush to California. I remember one trip out of New York carried more than 1,000 passengers, and if you had 50 in this case today there'd be a holier than thou to reach Washington and make trouble for somebody. Three of you crowded it means, three days out from New York a chap walked up to the ocean and said: 'I'm here!'"

"Captain, you really must find me a place to sleep."

"Where in thunder have you been sleeping until now?" asked the old man.

"Well," says the fellow, "you see, it's this way. I've been sleeping on a sick man, but he's got to get up and won't stand for it much longer."

Fruit of the Jack Tree.

The jack fruit, a giant among the different fruits, which grows all ready to be known by the name of tchackka among the Santeris, is found all over southeastern Asia, as far as the islands of the Pacific ocean; the Malabar coast (West Ghats) appears to be its habitat.

The jack tree is a tree of the British India (Artocarpus integrifolia), a relation of the bread tree, of all trees most resembles in growth, bark and leaves the silver birch of northern summer. The trunk and thickest branches of this tree, attaining to a height of eighty to one hundred feet, are laden with fruit weighing up to thirty kilograms, three feet in length, shaped like a somewhat long, rounded and full packed bag, covered with numberless green, yellowish-green pyramidal prickles about .05 centimeter high.

RIGHTS TO TERM DISPUTED

Mexican Herald Ridicules Appellation of "Christian Nations" to the Powers of the World.

A contemporary indulges in rash speculations respecting the benefits to accrue to the Old World empire which it shall be partitioned among the "Christian nations of Europe," remarks the Mexican Herald.

One fails to recognize any modern nation which the designation fits. Really Christian nations would not be content to reap the fruits of their conquest half their revenues in preparation for war. "Never since Christianity came," says a recent writer, "has there been a time when the conquest of nations was so marked by violence and the power of aggression. Opportunity and strength are recognized as the sole guides for international behavior. The most solemn pledges are set aside without question and the rupture of treaties is accepted almost without protest when the power that breaks the treaty is strong enough in itself or its allies to secure the fruits of its violence by threats of war. Blessed be the peacemakers, we are told; but if one great power claims that blessing for the actions of a Christian empire, when a man stops a quarrel by presenting a pistol at the head of the injured party, he may be described as a peacemaker, but a kind, but it is a peculiar kind, not coming, we think, within the meaning of the blessing."

The guiding principles of modern nations are not those of Christ, but rather those of Nietzsche, the teacher of the right of might and the glorification of brute force. The glorification of the trampling down remorselessly of the weak. The press of the world daily tells of the bitter hostility of the great nations and speculations as to the future of aerial navigation revolve around the employment of airships as agents of destruction. The advanced nations of the world are at this moment concentrating seven-tenths of their energies upon the means of fighting wars in a new way, when it comes, will shake the world and give the yellow race its chance to win new ground at the expense of white civilization.

Frog Industry in France.

It is in France that the frog was first generally used for food, and it is in that country that the industry of frog farming has been largely developed. The green frog exists abundantly throughout France wherever there are marshes, ponds or seamy margins of rivers or canals, and in such fresh or slightly brackish water.

The best output of frog raising is from the marshy ponds and reservoirs filled with grass and other water plants. It would be so situated that the water can be partially drawn off, and the frogs are then easily caught. If, as is often the case, the pond already abounds in frogs, they are simply protected and left for a year or two to increase in number. Fresh and in normal, living condition, if no frogs exist in the water they are planted either living or in the form of eggs, which have been previously hatched. The frog industry becomes warm in April—Popular Mechanics.

White Uniforms Not Popular.

White naval uniforms, when clean, are very effective, but are not popular. Every man in white on deck is exposed as a conspicuous bullseye to any guerrilla marksmen skulking through the brush or sneaking over the water surfaces of a hostile country. During the Philippine insurrection a signal corps officer, who was appreciably noticeable aboard the gunboats which patrolled the coasts within rifle shot of the beach. No sooner did a light mark show above the horizon than a bullet passed within the side of the ship or the hiss of a missile as it whizzed away into space showed that a game shot was being made. The officer, a baldy day a stiffly starched soldier took cool and neat to all himself, though starched clothes are endurable in mild weather. But let the thermal conditions change to a sultry humidity; result, the white and starched stiffness wits like a disrag, perspiration damps the linen which clings to the sweltering frame, bizarre creases streak the soggy trousers if one dares to sit down—Army and Navy Journal.

Truth of This Not Vouched For.

In an illustrated description of the game of tennis "Simplicissimus" says: "Like all good things, lawn tennis is of English origin. The game, while a prisoner, was compelled to beat carpets which were hung over a rail. Not contented with this but made a mouse at the edge of the court where stood near the net and make efforts to speak English."

Unprejudiced.

Mike McGinnis was being examined for jury duty in a murder trial. "Mr. McGinnis," asked the judge, "have you formed or expressed an opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the prisoner at the bar?"

"No," replied Mike. "Have you any conscientious scruples against capital punishment?"

"In this case, your honor," Mike replied—Success.

IN CONSTANT FLOW

SAMOAN VOLCANO POURS LAVA INTO OCEAN.

Only Four Years Old, But It is Easily the Titan of Them All—New Coast Line is Being Created.

In the island of Savali, in the Samoan group, during an August night in the year 1905 there arose from the midst of a peaceful cocoa plantation volcano that in four years of its still ceaseless activity has sent forth more molten lava than has any volcano of which there is record.

Today this flow of lava, in some places 700 feet in depth, is filling up the sea behind a frontage of more than seven miles, has destroyed about 50 villages and as many square miles of what was once the most productive area in all Samoa. From Apia, about 50 miles away on the island of Upolu, it is sometimes possible to read at night by the glare of the Savalian volcano, whose twin pillars of vapor by day become columns of lava.

Above the ever seething lake of fire which the crater has a great rim of snow clouds, while eight miles distant from the volcano an appears a lesser cloud, sometimes divided into many columns of apparent fire. It is but the steam arising from the sea, colored by the red glowing lava that pours a Niagara of fire over the cliffs of the volcano.

Scientists who have seen the most recent flow say that every minute 20,000 tons of lava flow over the lower rim of the crater; and that it resembles in any way the other lava, but like molten iron spreads over the old field and beyond until at the sea there is a Niagara of fire of ten miles in width. As this molten lava falls into the ocean, says Harper's Weekly, it turns to a fine black sand and sticks, and so a new coast is being built up, in water 300 to 400 feet deep.

The moving molten lake advances at the rate of four miles an hour. As it pours itself into the sea columns of lava are raised in steam to incalculable heights, and this, descending in a fine rain of brine, destroys vegetation and corrodes the galvanized iron roofs of churches and trading stores for miles around.

As the torrents of boiling lava break against the basalt cliffs or hummocks left by the old flow cliffs are melted by the hot hummocks disintegrated and carried forward by the flow to be hurled into the sea, where they explode like Titanic bombs, and the sea is taking place every moment along an ever widening sea front of ten miles at least. For more than a mile out in the ocean the water boils, and from the crater still flows a steady stream of lava greater, it is said, than man has ever seen in the latest issue from any volcano of which there is record.

Never once since that night four years ago, when this volcano was born in a peaceful valley, has it remained for a moment quiescent.

Mocking Birds in Massachusetts.

The coming of a mocking bird to Massachusetts is no rare thing that even those who have made a study of birds are apt to be puzzled by the unfamiliar visitor. To some persons it is of interest to learn that a pair of mockingbirds are making Dunster their home this year. They were the first noticed some weeks ago, when they made themselves at home about the house in the suburban town. The beauty of their songs brought neighbors to watch them. In a few days they left the place, having apparently found more congenial swamp near by at the bottom of an apple orchard.

Two enterprising nature students spent an afternoon under their tree, and they were rewarded by abundant opportunity for observing the birds which left no doubt as to their identity. Their nest is probably in the thicket of the swamp, but no one wants to risk disturbing them by hunting for it. They have improved their visit to the north by increasing their repertoire and have added imitations of several northern birds to the long list of songs they already had—Boston Globe.

New England's Libraries.

According to the statistics of the national bureau of education, New England has the largest number of libraries. Her states lead the rest of the country, except that California is ahead of Rhode Island. The former has 6,102 persons, while in Rhode Island there is one for every 6,837. In the number of volumes per capita, however, the little state is ahead, having 206 volumes for each citizen. New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Connecticut are ahead of her in the order of books, and Maine and Vermont follow.

ERAZA, THE DREAMER

SO CHARACTERIZED BY HIS WIFE, AND HE ADMITS IT.

But He Will Yet Get Her the Many Fine Things He Had Promised, and the New Hat Right Away.

"Erazza," said Mrs. Billtops, "when can I have the money for a new hat?"

Well, Elizabeth, Mrs. Billtops replied cheerfully, "I couldn't give it to you just now, but I can let you have it next week."

"Next week!" said Mrs. Billtops, schooling the words but giving them a somewhat different twist, saying them not bitterly nor sarcastically, but in a sort of sighing, weary tone. She continued:

"Erazza, do you know that you have been saying next week to me ever since we were married, so-and-so many years ago?"—Mrs. Billtops mentioned the number, but it isn't necessary to go into all these minor details here—and that next week has never come? You were going to get me horses and a carriage; yes, sir, I was going to have a carriage, sure, and a fine house and good clothes. You were going to make me happy, you said, and give me everything that heart could wish."

"Where, Erazza," Mrs. Billtops went on, smiling herself now as she recalled the catalogue of luxuries which when they were married brave Erazza gave her, but which he had never given, "where are those things that I was so surely going to have? Have I horses and a carriage? Is the house? Are the beautiful clothes? Have I any of the splendid things you promised me, that you were going to give me?"

"I have it not always been next week, next week, that these things were going to come, but have they ever come?" And again Mrs. Billtops smiled when she thought of the things he had said. "Horses? Carriages? A fine house? Beautiful clothes? Why, I'm having a hard time getting money to buy a new hat!"

"Well, Elizabeth," said Mrs. Billtops, "he was smiling, too. 'I haven't given you all those things that I was going to give you, that I wanted to give you, and that I surely expected I would be able to give you, that is true, but you see things didn't turn out exactly as I expected they would.'"

"I didn't care as much as I expected to, for one thing; and then, with all your economy, my dear, it always cost us more to live than we had expected, and then the children came; and so all the time it cost us more; and per-haps I'm a little old, and I should have done, and so I couldn't give you so many things that I would have liked to give."

"He never put off getting these things because I wanted to, but because I had to. You know I would have given you everything I promised you, if I could, don't you? And we have been very happy, haven't we? And I am going to get you all those things yet!"

"Erazza, you're a dreamer!" said Mrs. Billtops, smiling still, and looking down upon him kindly, as a matter of fact, very kindly, "just a dreamer."

"You're a dreamer," she said, and started for the office, thinking to himself that perhaps he was a dreamer, perhaps he had been so much of a dreamer; but he had had few night-mares in life, he had been mostly pleasant dreams; and then he reflected seriously that he certainly must find the money for Mrs. Billtops's new hat next week.

Criticism Repaid Author.

Bjornsen, the great Norwegian writer, who is reported to be serious by ill, once told an interviewer that when his first book was published not one of his friends could be prevailed upon to read it. He found a fellow student, whose opinion the young author valued highly, was persuaded to attack the book on being promised a shilling. In fulfillment of this promise, he climbed one afternoon up to Bjornsen's attic, filled a long pipe, undressed to his singlet, for it was very hot, flung himself on the bed and began to read, with the punch by his side. Bjornsen sat on the sofa, busy for praise, but not a word dropped from his friend's lips until the pipe, the bottle, and the book were finished, when he arose, dressed, and took his departure, remarking as he went, "That is the best book I ever read in my life." Then Bjornsen felt that his punch had not been wasted.

Confusion of Persons.

The Russians may make a mistake in putting a skull-and-crossbones label on bottles of vodka. They will teach the simple peasant, who cannot read, to look for the poison label when he is thirsty, and who can tell how much carbolic acid, vitriol and such deadly drugs will be taken in the guise of the other poison?

REVEALS MAJESTY OF NATURE

Grandeur in the Thunderstorm as It Is Seen by the Dweller in the Country.

The thunderstorm now has its day. It rumbles across the sunny face of the midsummer heavens. Sometimes it lowers the temperature and fills the air with freshness. Almost invariably it picks the nerves of your little sister and maiden aunt. It splinters the city flag pole, it demolishes the village steeple, it burns the farmer's barn. But all this does not prevent the thunderstorm from being the most awe-inspiring phenomenon which nature ordinarily shows to man. The city dweller, scurrying impotently through canyons of masonry, does not have more than a hint of the true grandeur. One should be upon a hill-top or on a broad lake to realize the omnipotence of the storm. The air is sultry. Great white "thunderheads" glissade the heaven. Dark clouds billow upon the horizon. These are laced with lightning. The dwarfs can be heard at their bowing on distant mountain peaks. The sun is overcast. The storm rushes onward. A glowing copper ring marks its center. A bush broods over the lake's unrippled waters. Suddenly comes a blast of wind as if from the puffing cheeks of a giant. Then like a marching water-fall—the rain. It pelts upon the lake until the drops seem to rebound. The thunder has ceased its rumbling. Now it comes with the lightning in a treble rip like the tearing of a sail. Thus the storm mounts to its crescendo, steadies, wanes, dwindles and fades—ramping away across the countryside. The sun creeps out. The heavens shine with fresher blue. The universe is purified. If all this be not majesty, there is none in nature.—Cottiers.

STORY FAILED TO MAKE HIT

Old Man's Name "Yarn" Greeted with Laughter Instead of Admiration He Expected.

"That was a lame and impotent conclusion," said Senator Aldrich of an opponent's tariff story which failed to effect like old Eliza Grey's adventure story.

"At a package party one winter night in the city, the speaker regaled one another with weird and frightening adventures that had befallen them in lonely chateaus. They told of meetings with highwaymen in deserted lanes, encounters in lonely houses with desperate burglars, and so forth.

"Vain old Eliza Grey, after an hour or so of this, got jealous of the interest and awe that the adventure stories of the men about him stirred up. So, interrupting a burglar yarn quite rudely, he piped in his high quaver:

"I ain't never been molested, but wunst, ladies an' gents. I was hurryin' to hum from the ginral store at the time. It was late at night—close on 11 o'clock—when I was passin' the doctor's—it was dark an' lone-some, I tell ye—why, a soft-spoken young feller steps up an' asks me for a match. So I up with me and I land him a good 'un on the jaw, an' he hit out o' that just as fast as my legs 'ud carry me."

"Old Eliza, looking around for a display of shuddering admiration, was very much disgusted, indeed, to find the end of his story greeted with a roar of laughter."

The Heaviest Ringing Bell.
Grandison, the famous tower of the bell of bells in Exeter (England), had a narrow escape from disaster.

It was being rung during the White-antique when a bell which kept the clapper in position came out owing to the displacement of a pin. The result was that the clapper, which weighs well on toward a hundredweight, also came out and fell as the bell was swinging. A good stout floor prevented the clapper from falling into the ringing chamber below, where there were 16 or 18 ringers. The clapper was knocked clear by the bell itself, and beyond slight chipping of the lip, Grandison suffered no damage.

The bell is the heaviest used for ringing in the world, and has only been rung single handed through a peal, the ringer in that case being Mr. W. Fye of London. Grandison weighs 72 hundredweight, and if the stock be included, something like four tons. The bells had not been rung for a twelvemonth, owing to repairs to the tower, and the present mishap is therefore particularly unfortunate.

Miles Covered in Dancing.
Dancing is a strenuous exercise. Calculations show the distances negotiated in a night by ball enthusiasts and their partners to be worthy the performance of athletes. Thus, the average waltz turn will require a dancer to travel over 1,300 yards. Other round dances in their accomplishment involve: the mazurka, 1,600 yards; the polka, a trifle under the thousand; the pas de quatre, barely 900 yards. Quadrilles, however, hold the record, since dancing one entails on each of the eight persons in the set the achievement of unwittingly of a constitutional mile in a quarter long; while dancing the full card, inclusive of the cotillon, at a ball beginning say at ten o'clock at night and winding up at five o'clock the following morning, necessitates the taking of 28,600 steps, or a total distance covered of over 11 miles.

Exquisite Creations IN - TAILORED SUITS -

Style touches not present in the ordinary run of suits distinguish our selections. Smartly tailored two-piece and three-piece suits in which the dominant note is the lengthened coat, its long, swagger lines being exceptionally clever and attractive. Slender, but not fully form-fitting. Suit skirts are generally pleated or killed. Colorings are many, dark shades and the deeper pastel shades being largely favored. Materials vary greatly, including both rough and smooth finished effects. All in all this is the most sumptuous showing of the authoritative styles in tailored suits to be seen in this vicinity. Customers know that on fit our suits invariably excel.

The New in Separate Coats

A different and surpassing exhibit of these garments is certain this season. More trig than in recent seasons, fitting the form just snugly enough to bring out the lines of the figure. Moyer Age adaptations are evidenced in the extended waist line and the effective use of hip trimmings. To see separate coat styles at their best, come and view this unrivaled showing.

New Dresses of Unmatched Beauty

The vogue of the separate coat has led to a widened favor for two-piece dresses, and this season's styles we show are of surpassing beauty. The salient features of the Moyer Age lines are cleverly brought out in these styles. You'll find here a wide range to choose from at particularly pleasing prices.

Novel Waist Styles For Fall

The separate waist is an indispensable adjunct to one's wardrobe. The new styles trend toward simple effects in style and cut, the most noticeable changes being in the sleeves and trimmings. Our showing includes all the leading staple and novelty shades, and will commend itself to all women of fashion in every detail of style, quality and price.

Dressy Evening Costumes of Rich Beauty

For the more ceremonious occasions we have assembled a splendid variety of dressy toilettes. The overskirt pattern of the washer-woman style is an example of fashion that promises wide popularity. Our models present all that is new, exclusive and richly elegant in evening costumes.

Separate Skirts of Correct Style

New tailored walking skirts and models for fall present a wide variety to choose from. Yoke methods have the long medieval waist line of the Moyer Age fashions. Pleats are present on the lower portions of these correct skirts. Materials, colors and trimmings are many, and our present skirt showing is one that we have never seen equaled in this vicinity.

Stylish Petticoats For Fall

Yes, the petticoats are stylish. This is due to the fact that the fuller skirts of this season make the petticoat an important garment in midday wardrobe. The new petticoats are truly a feminine garment, fitted smoothly at the hips and having considerable fullness from the knees down. Many new effects in designs, materials and colorings, and all here in our superior showing.

Success Says Lebus.

Clarence Lebus, leader of the movement looking to the pool of the 1909 crop of Burley tobacco, returned to Lexington Saturday night, and made the following statement:

"With three days left to vote before the planters decide by their votes whether or not the pool shall become effective or be declared off, the situation is distinctly encouraging. Success of the movement rest with the growers of the central Blue Grass counties, and I believe that they will measure up to expectations."

"Within this week the acreage in the pool has been doubled, and with the impetus gained late in the week, the final three days of the campaign will be far the heaviest of any preceding. All organized opposition has within the past week been transformed into support, and enthusiasm is manifest in practically all sections."

"I have heard that Kenton is practically a unit for the pool and in Scott 6,000 acres have been signed. I am thoroughly satisfied with the situation and hope for a strong pool."

Captured After Chase Covering Four Years and 25,000 Miles.

Sophie Beck was arrested in Atlantic City, after a chase of four years and 25,000 miles. In March, 1905, Sophie Beck, or Mrs. Graham, as she is now married, left Philadelphia. It is alleged, with a sum of money estimated at $1,000, 000 that had been wrung from the dupes of the Storey Cotton Company swindle, of which she and Francis C. Marzan were the geniuses, the police say. Sophie Beck, since she left this country, has gone all over the civilized world.

Aeroplane for War Purposes.

The disaster to the military dirigible balloon Republique, at Paris, September 26, in which four French officers lost their lives, has plunged France into mourning. Subsequent investigation fully confirms the fact that the accident was due to the snapping of the rapidly revolving propeller blade which tore through the gas bag. There was no trace of fire about the silk.

GRAND NEW WORLD NATIONALS

Marvelous Development of the Two Americas Foreshadowed in the Present Day.

Chile has an industrial awakening which is marvelous. The work on the first steel plant south of Mexico is progressing so rapidly that it will be ready for opening in October, 1910. It will cost $2,000,000 in United States gold and will have a daily output of 200 tons.

The consular reports sent to the government at Washington are filled with instructive comments and facts and figures about the activities of different nations. Japan's alertness is well known. Besides improving her rivers and harbors she is organizing new steamship lines to various South American ports.

But of all the intrepid hustlers Canada is the eliest, yet most conspicuous. When one tries to imagine the great empire which will one day take the place of the modest lady of the snows, all Old World grandeur seems to pale. When one further lets his imagination roam from Hudson bay to the Straits of Magellan and takes in the coming wonders of New World nations, he is staggered by the extent of Canadian, United States, Mexican, Central America, Brazilian, Argentine and Chilean developments. Europe, Asia and Australia vanish like the mists of a dream or remain visible only as islands in a sea of which the worshippers have departed.

THE PIG AND THE POLITICIAN

Philadelphia Man Tells Remarkable Story of Quaker Attachment Formed.

Joseph M. Donahue, a downtown resident who is known in political circles, is a traveling salesman for a firm interested in church fixtures. He tells a good one on himself that happened up at Shenandoah a few days ago. "As I came into town," said Donahue, "I noticed in the distance a large number of people. It seemed to be watching me continually for a half mile before I got into the station."

"When the train stopped, a pig was opposite the station looking up in my face. I alighted and started toward the town, the pig following me."

"I went into a drug store to buy a soda. The pig stayed outside, and when I came out to continue my journey the pig was ready and followed. I was soon at the church door and waited the arrival of the sexton. When he came I walked in the open door and the pig made an attempt to go, too, but was soon chased by the graff orders and a kick from the janitor."

"When I came out I noticed the pig wending its way toward the station, a quarter of a mile ahead of me, seemingly dejected because it had been kept by the church, and I said to the church," Philadelphia Times.

Rouget de Lisle's House.

The house inhabited by Rouget de Lisle, the composer of "Marseillaise," has been sold. The Paris correspondent in the London Telegraph. It is a small building with two stories and the room occupied by the revolutionary poet, and author of the "Marseillaise," is on the second floor. It is said to have been preserved all these years exactly as it was at the time of his death in 1836. In 1892, on the occasion of the centenary of the "Marseillaise," a marble slab was placed on the front of the house which, in reality, he had inhabited only for six years before his death. But so few of his other dwellings were known that this one was looked upon as precious. The house was put up to auction with an upset price of $4,000, and was sold for $5,000.

"Hamlet" in Japan.

Japanese actors in a theater in Kobe, Japan, recently presented "Hamlet." The production was described as "a wonderful mixture of the beautiful and the grotesque." Ophelia appeared as a beautiful girl in kimono and sometimes in western evening costume. The king at one time wore the picturesque costume of a Japanese nobleman and at others a silk hat and a swallowtail coat. The climax was reached in Hamlet himself, who in the earlier scenes wore the uniform of a student of the Imperial university, but in the third act made his appearance on a bicycle, clad in a bright blue cycling suit and striped stockings and at the finish was seen in conventional evening dress, with a flower in his buttonhole.

The Duty of the Rich.

To be rich, in itself, is no crime. It is the means of his getting rich that determines whether the rich man is or is not a malefactor. It is, however, as Justice Brewer does not neglect to point out, the obvious duty of him who accumulates enormous capital—representing wealth incalculable power for good or for evil—to use some portion of his amassed riches for the benefit of the community at large. He says: "The more our wealthy men come into the habit of helping educational and charitable institutions and organizations the more they will disabuse the minds of the less fortunate of their prejudices."—Philadelphia Ledger.

NO AMERICAN NATIONAL CAKE

Unlike Most Countries of the Old World, We Are Without a Specialty.

"There's a bully good story in here about Holland," said a man who was reading one of the magazines. "The writer makes special mention of the little cakes, which are what you might call the national cake of the Dutch. It's queer that so many of the countries of the old world have their specialties in the bakery line, and the United States hasn't anything of the sort. There are those tarts in Holland, those cakes in France, those French bread, the Italians have a closer bread, that is quite unlike that of the French, but very palatable. Spanish bakers, wherever you find them, have a knack of making delightful little rolls that no other nation can make. If you go into a German bakery there are innumerable kinds of coffee cake, all typically German. Now, if you go into a bakery, except of the very fanciest class here, what do you find? You find bread and rolls that average very bad, and the same sorts of cake in all the bakeries. On the other side, the stores specialize. Many of them have some little specialty that no other store carries, and the recipe for this is carefully guarded. If it's most impossible to get a good roll here to a good bread or rolls from any bakery."

EVILS LAID TO NEURASTHENIA

Italian Physician Asserts That Disease is Responsible for All Manner of Ailments.

Neurasthenia, according to Dr. Diomedeo Carlo of Naples, an authority on that disease, is responsible for all manner of evils. Lying, spitefulness, incapacity, over-sensitiveness to criticism, excessive shyness, lack of will power, inability to concentrate, a tendency to melancholia, nervous exhaustion and depression—these and many other defects of character may be traced not infrequently, he says, to neurasthenia. So deeply impressed is he with the menace of the disease that he suggests an international conference on the subject.

The British Medical Journal, which quotes his views, makes the matter less seriously. Neurasthenia, it says, is often merely a high-sounding name for that tired feeling. The root of the disease lies in unsuitable education. Competition, the journal says, is too much the test of merit nowadays, and the nervous system of the young men meet examinations which are not tests of knowledge really, but "traps for the memory." Therein lies neurasthenia.

The Good-Tempered Japanese.

It was into this narrow thoroughfare, already crowded to its utmost capacity by merchants and shoppers, merchandise and awnings, that the mammoth-like Thomas pushed his way. It was our only route into the city, and the Japanese had no choice as to what followed. Capt. Hansen jumped out on one side, and I on the other. We swept aside the awnings and saved it from destruction; pushed back the awnings against the shop fronts, and then, having made room for the crowd, we had to choose as to the next step. To try to help the shopkeepers straighten out their tumbled wares would have been useless; so, not without a twinge of conscience, we continued our disturbing course. And in the entire length of that street not an angry word, not even a frown.—From "Across Japan in a Motor Car," by George MacAdam in the Outlook Magazine.

One Mr. Thackeray.

The pluralism in the theatrical name explained that she adopted the name of Walker because she liked it better than that of Thackeray. It was not until the invasion first saw the light of day at Exeter, where, by the purchase of what were called "im-munity tickets," the theatre above the ordinary price of admission, men were protected from the importunities of women stallholders to buy. This innovation, which was styled "preferential treatment," proved a diverting method of obtaining increased male support for the fete. A man, on being approached by a feminine stallholder, had only to show his colored passport to secure complete immunity.

Suburban Troubles.

"How does Wright like his new home in the country?" "Pretty well. He has got up in the dead of the night, and the train, and it's after dark when he gets to home. And he sleeps all day Sunday. Last week he begged a day off at the office."

"What for?" "So he could get a good look at the home by sunlight."

CONVENTION

Of Christian Churches Greatest Ever Held in State.

Larger Offerings, Larger Attendance, Larger Results.

The annual convention of the Kentucky Christian Church was held at Lexington last week from Monday night to Friday noon. The past year's work and this convention surpass all previous records, considering results achieved, attendance and interest manifested. No definite record of the number present was kept, but competent men say it was the greatest ever. For the first time the "pay plan" was followed. Delegates paid for what they got, unless they were invited to be guests at home. On Monday night there was the introductory service for the three organizations. All sessions were held at the auditorium. E. O. Excell, of Chicago, directed the music. At this time we give only a summary of reports. The first day was devoted to the C. W. B. M. The secretary, Mrs. Yancey, reported as follows:

Membership	4,034
Life Members	697
State Dues	$2,171
National Dues	4,042
C. W. B. M. Day	2,399

Kentucky's part of the $200,000 Centennial fund was to be $15,000. They had given $19,956, wishing to make it even $20,000 an offering was at once taken. The total was raised to $20,020.

These and other offerings totaled $25,132.15.

OFFICERS.

The State officers of last year were re-elected except Mrs. A. M. Harrison, for several years President, was retired to a Vice Presidency and Mrs. John Gay, of Woodford county, formerly Miss Mattie Bridgeforth, of our county, was elected President. Many friends here will be pleased to know of the honor conferred upon her in recognition of her ability to successfully perform the arduous duties. We are confident that she will well and faithfully do her part.

We are especially interested in the report of the 8th district, over which Mrs. Alex. Conner presides for the counties of Bath, Montgomery, Clark, Bourbon, Harrison and Nicholas. Offerings and dues amounted to $3,446, members, 748, auxiliaries and circles 18, and the presidents of 15 of them being at convention. 15 auxiliaries paid in full their centennial apportionment, 6 won star certificates, 11 are on the State honor roll. The auxiliary at Owensville made the greatest increase in members of any in the State. The schools at Morehead and Hazel Green are in flourishing condition.

KENTUCKY C. M. C.

Wednesday was devoted to the Kentucky C. M. Convention, presided over by H. D. Smith, of Hopkinsville; the writer has been Secretary continuously since his election at Shelbyville in 1899. From the report of H. W. Elliott, State Evangelist we get this:

Collection from Churches $21,925.94; men in field, $8,536.50; collection for local work $11,406.85. These and other sums total for Kentucky Missions $42,919.28. For Bible School work $2,509.09. Widows and Orphans Home, $5,495.21; Churches and Bible School $4,415.21. Grand total for State Missionary and benevolent work, $51,914.55. Add to this all other sums for Foreign and Home Missions and the grand total for all in Kentucky last year is $119,387.48.

During the year 53 men have given more or less time to evangelization under State Board, resulting in more than 3,100 additions to the church.

BIBLE SCHOOLS.

Thursday was given to Bible School work. This was the day of greatest enthusiasm and attendance. Interest centered around the raising of $25,000 for a Chair of Bible School Pedagogy in College of Bible. $24,011 had been raised in 3 years. In a few minutes the other $1,000 was given and all sang "Praise God," etc.

The address by M. G. Buckner on College campus and the men's great parade at 5:20 attracted much attention. Estimates of those in line down Broadway, out Main to Auditorium vary—placed by some at 1200 to 1500. It was a great showing. Organized adult Bible classes received a great impetus. At night the capacity of the Auditorium was taxed.

On Friday morning in Lexington cemetery J. W. McGarvey delivered eulogies on John Smith, John T. Johnson, Robert Milligan and others. Then at the Auditorium Geo. H. Combs spoke on Alexander Campbell. The convention closed with a basket dinner in Gratz Park by the country congregation. A notable convention this was.

R. G. Salyer, of Cassville, Mo., has been here since Wednesday. He leaves today.

Forcing the Child.

Do not force a child unduly to practice the piano, lest it acquire a distaste for the study, which both child and parent may bitterly regret in later years, says Woman's Life. It is little short of a crime to compel any form of study in a child even though it happens to have a natural talent for a particular art.

No Muteches in Alaska.

Muteches are not worn by men exposed to the severity of an Alaskan winter. They wear full beards to protect the throat and face, but keep the upper lip clean shaven. The moisture from the breath congeals so quickly that a muteche becomes imbedded in a solid cake of ice, and the face is frozen in a short time.

Nightingales Under a Ban.

It is said that no nightingales sing in Havering, England. Legend has it that the singing of the birds disturbed the devotions of Edward the Confessor when at his Havering palace, and he therefore placed them under a ban from which they have never recovered.

$375 Mother's Oats Fireless Cooker and a complete assortment of MOTHER'S CEREALS - all for $284

The Mother's Oats Fireless Cooker actually cooks without fuel. It solves the servant problem, the fuel problem and the delayed dinner problem. It saves 80% of your present coal or gas bills, and 90% of your present kitchen worries. When you own a Mother's Oats Fireless Cooker, you simply place your oatmeal (or anything else that you want to prepare) on the stove, bring it to a boiling point, remove, place in Fireless Cooker, put the lid in position, tug the draw-string, and go to bed. While you're sleeping, the food will keep cooking itself. Nothing can boil over or burn or spoil. During the day you can start soup or joints or vegetables, place them in the Cooker, visit your neighbor, go to the matinee, or shop, without any thought of a hot, stuffy kitchen range.

Now, there is only one way that you can get a Mother's Oats Fireless Cooker, unless you want to go to a store and pay $3.75 for it, and that is by being a user of Mother's Cereals, the best cereals, prepared in the largest mills, and sold everywhere by the best dealers in every town. In every package we place a coupon, and when you have 125 coupons we'll send you the $3.75 Fireless Cooker for nothing. If you want a Fireless Cooker in a hurry, you can either buy ten packages of MOTHER'S OATS or any other Mother's Cereal, and get the Cooker immediately by paying $1.15 in cash on the following basis:

50 coupons and .75 cash
35 coupons and .90 cash
25 coupons and 1.00 cash
15 coupons and 1.10 cash
10 coupons and 1.15 cash

THIS FIRELESS COOKER is 12 inches high and 12 inches in diameter. Two Fine Agate Ware Pans go with it.

Yields Life After Long and Brave Struggle.

Gov. John A. Johnson, three times elected Governor of Minnesota, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President of the United States in 1908, and looked upon by many throughout the country as the probable Democratic national standard-bearer in 1912, died at St. Mary's Hospital at Rochester, Minn., on September 21, following an operation.

Gov. Johnson was born at St. Peter, Minn., July 28, 1861. His parents were Swedish immigrants. His father, Gustave Johnson, was a blacksmith, who had come to America on the charity of friends, who hoped that life in a strange land, far removed from the influences of his native place, would help him to conquer an early acquired appetite for strong drink. For a time the young blacksmith seemed to have refrained. He worked steadily at his trade, married a Swedish girl, who had made her home at St. Peter, and began to rear a family of children.

But the thirst for alcohol asserted itself, and the father drifted from bad to worse until he left home and was finally sent to the county poorhouse, a mental and physical wreck. The wife and young children, who were left penniless, and the mother took in washing to support herself and little ones. This state of grinding penury lasted until John Johnson was 13 years old.

Then, with his first independent thought, young Johnson sacrificed the little schooling his mother was able to give him and insisted on taking employment in a printshop. He gave every cent of his earnings to his mother, but still she had to work and scrub for other people. The Johnson boy read and studied at night, and tried bravely to lift himself for a better position. And after awhile he was given employment in a drugstore at St. Peter. He worked steadily, studying all the time, and finally he was earning $75 a month. Then he insisted that his mother give up her life of drudgery.

The self-education to which young Johnson had subjected himself enabled him to become a licensed pharmacist, and then he obtained a place on the staff of the St. Peter Herald. By close economy he saved a little money, and with this he procured for himself an interest in the newspaper and became its editor.

WINS RESPECT OF ALL.

All this self-denying effort, covering all the years of his youth and early manhood, had won for Mr. Johnson the high regard of his neighbors, who knew the terrible odds that he had overcome, and respected him for his honest and successful struggle.

The editorship of a newspaper led Mr. Johnson into the field of politics, and his neighbors expressed their faith in him by electing him to the State Senate of Minnesota. There for the first time he had an opportunity to prove to the people of the whole State, and to his neighbors in particular, that he was a man worthy of their trust.

In 1904, when Mr. Johnson was first named for the governorship by the Democrats, it was thought that he did not have the ghost of a chance of being elected. It was true, that the Republican party was split in the State, but then Theodore Roosevelt was the Republican nominee for President, and a Republican landslide was expected. Mr. Johnson made a house to house canvass during the campaign, and the people rose to him. Roosevelt carried the State by something like 162,000 plurality, but when it was all over it was found that Johnson had been elected Governor by a safe plurality of 6,352. And in 1906 he was re-elected by 72,518 plurality, although every other State officer elected was a Republican. And it happened again in 1908, President Taft carried the State by 86,353 plurality, but Johnson,

Democrat, was elected by 28,002 plurality.

LEAVES TWO CHILDREN.

On June 1, 1904, Johnson married Elenore Preston, a young woman who had just graduated from a convent and was teaching art in a private school at St. Peter. Two children were born to them. Mrs. Johnson is a Catholic and Gov. Johnson was a Presbyterian.

FAME SECURED BY NONSENSE.

Instances in History That Prove Serious Work Is Forgotten Before Play of Wit.

It is related of Rabelais that after he had written some sensible pieces which gained little favor, "I will write something," he said, "that they shall take notice of," and immediately set to work to write nonsense which established his reputation.

Nonsense, under whatever name, wit, humor, "holocaustic" playfulness, has done, perhaps, more to spread a man's fame than any serious work in art, politics, literature, or professional life in general.

Take Sheridan, for instance. His jests and puns kept alive his memory more than his speeches or his writings. He had a very convenient form of acknowledgment for the new books which were constantly sent to him: "Dear Sir: I have received your exquisite work, and I have no doubt I shall be highly delighted after I have read it."

It was very much amused one day by a fellow-member of the house of commons, who kept crying out every five minutes: "Hear! Hear!" During the debate he took occasion to describe a political contemporary who desired to play the rogue, but had only sense enough to act the fool.

"Where," he asked with marked emphasis, "where shall we find a more knavish or more knavish fool than he?"

"Hear! Hear!" shouted the troublesome member. Sheridan turned around, and looking him for the prompt reply, sat down amid a roar of laughter.

No jest of his was more cutting than that occasioned by Burke's flinging a dagger on the floor of the house, which produced derision. "The gentleman," observed Sheridan, "has brought us the knife, but where is the fork?"

The retort discursive was illustrated in the case of Dr. Porson, the Greek scholar, to whom an eager student said: "Dr. Porson, my opinion of you is almost contemptible." "Sir," rapidly came the reply, "I never knew an opinion of yours that was not contemptible." The retort courteous, however, was given up by an English rector, who one day read in church a sermon by Dr. South, who chanced to be present incoherent, and, thanking the preacher for the discourse, suggested that it must have been the result of much labor. "Not at all," was the reply. "We have been thinking rapidly—in afternoon and morning."

"Is that possible? Why, it took me three weeks to write that very sermon." "Your name is Dr. South?" the rector asked. "It is, sir." "Then I have only to say that I am not ashamed to preach Dr. South's sermons anywhere."

Individuality.

Individuality is the only real life. It is breathing the ozone of mental, spiritual freedom. All other living is an excuse, a substitute, a near thing. Nature put her stamp of individuality on every man. Some are made to be great, some to be small. The man trying to look off the stamp. They wear a uniform opinion, they seek to keep in step with the line, they march in solid numbers along the comfortably paved road of other people's thinking. Nature intended life as an individual problem. Different for each man; she wants an individual solution.

Individuality means self-knowledge, self-confidence, self-reliance, self-poise, self-control, self-conquest. It means the fullest, freest expression of our finest self, as the most perfect rose best represents the plant. It is the complete, self-acting unity of man's whole mind, nature, heart and life. It is moved over within, not from without. The automobile is a type of individuality—it is neither pulled, pushed nor propelled by outside forces; it is self-inspired, self-directed and self-moving—"The Circle."

Motor Car Filtration.

Given a young woman in an electric runabout and a young man driving alone in a drag touring car. The young man desires to convey the information that he has taken hurried note of the facial contour of the young person in the electric machine and that unless he's mistaken an acquaintance might ripen into mutual esteem. It is evening. He honks three or four little honks for the purpose of attracting attention. Then he winks twice with the little electric light over the clock on the dashboard. She gives two similar electric flashes. That means—well, never mind what it means. The young man knows. Of course, she might have flashed on the light just to find out what time it is. Still, after you've been at it awhile you can get so you can tell. This is just one instance. There are a lot of other ways. It takes a little practice and patience, but one can master the entire code in a little while.

Hurrying Up a Proposal. Howell—Miss Rowell doesn't say "This is so sudden."

Rowell—What does she say? Howell—She has been studying Parliamentary law, and when I told her that she was the only girl I had ever loved, she at once said, "I move the previous question."

Molding a Future.

"What kind of a career have you mapped out for your boy, Josh?" "I'm going to make a lawyer of him," answered Farmer Corstansen. "He's got an unconquerable fancy for tending to other folks' business, as he might as well get paid for it."

Robbing Yourself

That is just what you are doing when you fail to get regular and sufficient sleep. Your body requires this unconscious period for repair work; without it your nerve energy becomes exhausted, and you are tired, worn-out, nervous, excitable; have headache, neuralgia, indigestion, poor appetite, or other ailments caused by a lack of nerve force. Make it your business to sleep. If you are restless, take Dr. Miles' Nerveine; it soothes and strengthens the nerves, and brings sweet, refreshing, life-giving sleep, and gives the organs power to work naturally. Try it to-day.

"I had a severe spell of fever, which left me in a very weak condition and very nervous. I had severe spells of headache and neuralgia, and could sleep but very little. Every effort that I made to recover my strength was of no avail until I began taking Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerveine. After I commenced to take the Nerveine my sleep was profound and restful, and the pains in my head, as well as the neuralgia pains, left me to a certain extent and grew gradually better."

DR. MILES' NERVEINE is sold by your druggist. Write for a free copy of the first bottle will benefit. If it fails, we will refund your money.

Charged With Selling Examination Papers.

Two indictments charging the sale of school examination questions were returned by the Franklin county grand jury against Peter W. Williams, a negro, who was confidential porter in the office of State Superintendent Crabbe. The negro protests his innocence, but if he is guilty the wholesale dealing in examination questions is explained, as the negro had access to the examination questions.

Williams is accused by the statement of Edward Kirtley, also a negro, who says that he bought examination questions from Williams. Kirtley was indicted on four counts. He was arrested in Chicago and brought back to Kentucky. When Kirtley was put in jail he broke down and confessed. He said he had sold the examination papers, but that he had obtained them from W. P. Williams. Williams claims that he can prove his innocence.

This Is Philosophy.

There is a great deal of philosophy in the following: "Drink and the gang drinks with you; swear off and you go it alone; for the bar room bum who drinks your rum has a quenchless thirst of his own. Feast and your friends are many; fast and they cut you dead; they'll not get mad if you treat them bad, so long as their stomach is fed. Steal, if you get a million, for then you can get bail; it's the great big thief that gets out on leave, while the little one goes to jail."
